Receptionist: Kalbarri Visitor Centre. Good morning.
Girl: Good morning. I’m at a hotel with some friends and we want to take part in some sporting activities. Have you got any today?
Receptionist: Yes, we have. There’s a jeep tour with sandboarding and snorkelling for young people today.
Girl: When does it leave?
Receptionist: It leaves this office at 10 o’clock this morning. Do you want to join?
Girl: Yes, please. I’ve got four friends, and me of course. But we haven’t got any equipment.
Receptionist: That’s OK. You can use our sandboards and snorkels.
Girl: Can we wear sandals and jeans?
Receptionist: It’s a good idea to wear trainers and shorts. Have you got hats?
Girl: Yes, of course. What other sports are there?
Receptionist: Let’s see. There’s swimming, windsurfing, sailing, hiking, fishing and whale-watching.
Girl: Well, I’m sure we’ll be back to try some of the other activities. Thanks for your help.

John: Tell me, Sara, are your parents still looking for a new flat?
Sara: Yes, they are. Why are you asking?
John: Have a look at this picture. It’s from an article about the Freedom Ship.
Sara: I don’t think they’re interested in a ship, John. We need a place to live, not a holiday.
John: You don’t understand. When the Freedom Ship is finally built, 50,000 people will live on it. It will be a floating city.
Sara: Wow! Where will it be? What does the article say?
John: The Freedom Ship won’t stay in one place. It’s going to travel around the world. Imagine that – the people on it will see the world without leaving their homes!
Sara: The ship has to stop in different ports, doesn’t it? People will need to buy food and clothing.
John: No, they won’t. They are going to build one of the biggest shopping centres in the world on the ship. There will be a hospital, a university and schools for children as well.

Announcer: Hello and welcome to the London Quiz Show. Let’s begin with our easy questions. Carol, people often take taxis in London. What colour are the famous London taxis?
Carol: Black.
Announcer: That’s right, Carol. One point. Ted, if you travel in a taxi to the Prime Minister’s house, what street will you go to?
Ted: Oh, I’ll have to guess, Oxford Street?
Announcer: No, I’m sorry. It’s Downing Street. The Prime Minister lives in Downing Street. OK, now the questions get harder. Carol, do you know how many people visit London each year?
Carol: Actually, I do. Some people think it’s 20 million, but actually it’s 120 million people.
Announcer: Well done, Carol. You know your facts. Two points. Ted, many years ago, King Henry VIII had a very unusual pet. Do you know what it was?
Ted: Yes, I know this. It was an elephant.
Announcer: Right, two points. Carol, how many football teams are there in London?
Carol: Oh, wait, there are twee ... no wait there are thirteen. Thirteen football teams.
Announcer: Carol, you are doing well tonight. So, will Carol win or will it be Ted? Find out after the adverts … .

Anna: Hi, Mark! It’s Anna. I’m back from my summer holidays.
Mark: Welcome home Anna! Did you have a good time in Switzerland?
Anna: Switzerland is fantastic. It’s one of the most beautiful places in the world.
Mark: Where did you stay?
Anna: We stayed in a small village called Zermatt.
Mark: What did you do?
Anna: We skied.
Mark: But there isn’t any snow in the summer. How did you ski?
Anna: Zermatt is next to the Matterhorn. The Matterhorn is one of the highest mountains in the Swiss Alps. There is snow on the mountain all year. You can ski on the Matterhorn 365 days a year.
Mark: Wow! That’s cool. Did you do a lot of skiing?
Anna: Not as much as I wanted. In the summer you can only ski till 2.00 in the afternoon.
Mark: Why?
Anna: After two o’clock, the sun is hotter than earlier in the day.
Mark: Does the snow melt?

>>>
Anna: No, the snow doesn’t melt but the snow in the afternoon is much wetter than the snow in the morning and it’s too wet to ski.
Mark: What did you do in the afternoons?
Anna: We went hiking in the Alps and we also did some shopping. What did you do this summer?
Mark: Nothing yet. But next week I’m going to visit my cousin in Amsterdam.

Dan: Why do we call this era the Victorian Era?

Guide: Good question. We get the name from the queen of that time, Victoria. She became queen when she was 18 years old, in 1837, and she ruled for 64 years.

Dan: I don’t understand. What was important about the Victorians? Everyone always talks about them.

Guide: Well, a lot of things changed in the Victorian period, from 1837 to 1901, and we can still feel the effects of that change today.

Dan: Like what?

Guide: In 1837, most people were farmers and they lived in villages. But when industrialisation began, people moved to cities. By 1901, most of the people in the UK lived and worked in cities.

Dan: I see, so were their lives easy in the city?

Guide: Not always. Rich people lived very well, but poor people didn’t have good lives. They couldn’t even send their children to school. But that changed slowly.

Dan: How did it change?

Guide: Some politicians said it was cruel to make young children work. They made laws against it, and children under the age of nine couldn’t work any more. The politicians also made every town, city and village open a school, so all the children in the UK could go to school.

Anita: Yes?
Helen: Did Rembrandt really live here?
Anita: Oh, yes. It was his house for more than 20 years. As you probably know, Rembrandt is Holland's most famous painter.
James: Tell us some more about him.
Anita: Of course. Rembrandt was born in Leiden, Holland, on 15th July, 1606. He became a student at the university there.
James: Did he finish university?
Anita: No, he left to study art. Rembrandt quickly became a very successful artist and he left the world hundreds of paintings. Unfortunately, he didn’t have as much luck in his personal life. This house is a good example.

Listening

Paul: What are you reading, Linda?
Linda: It’s a book about sharks. It’s really interesting. Have you read it?
Paul: No, I haven’t. Why are you interested in sharks?

>>>
Linda: I’m going on a boat trip to Cyprus next week. I want to know what to do if a shark attacks me. According to this book, you will survive a shark attack if you act calmly.

Paul: Oh really, Linda. Dogs hurt more people than sharks and you’re not afraid of them.

Linda: I know, but it’s better to be prepared. My cousin was on a boat trip last year and he saw three sharks near the boat!

Paul: All right then, what does the book say? How do you survive a shark attack?

Linda: Well, first of all, you must try to get out of the water. If you can’t, you mustn’t let the shark know you’re afraid. Sharks have got a special sensor. If you’re afraid, they will be aggressive. Luckily, I’ve always been a good actress.

Paul: Yes, that’s true. I’ve seen a lot of films about shark attacks and the victims often lie still and pretend to be dead. What does the book say about that?

Linda: It says it won’t trick a shark and it will still attack. If you can’t get away, the best thing is to fight back. If the shark thinks you’re strong, it will leave you alone.

Paul: Well, I hope you never meet a shark, Linda. You’ll never convince anyone you’re strong!

Louise: I’m hungry. Let’s stop at this chip shop. They’ve got the best chips in Scotland.

Jack: Great. I’ve never eaten in a British chip shop. At home in Canada, everyone talks about them. Do you know that chips aren’t eaten with ketchup here? They’re served with vinegar! Can you imagine?

Shop owner: Hello. Welcome to Bob’s Chip Bar. What can I get for you?

Louise: I’d like a plate of fish and chips – without the vinegar. What about you, Jack?

Jack: What else is served here? I’d like something a bit more adventurous.

Shop owner: Well, tourists often ask for our deep-fried haggis, but not everyone likes it.

Jack: What is haggis made from?

Louise: Jack, it’s the Scottish national dish, remember? It’s prepared from a sheep’s stomach.

Jack: No, thanks. That’s not for me. What is that man over there eating? It looks delicious.

Shop owner: That’s a deep-fried Mars Bar. You know – a Mars Bar is a chocolate bar.
Louise: I've never heard of a deep-fried chocolate bar!
Shop owner: Well, they're quite popular in Scotland. In fact, some people call them Scotland's new national food.
Louise: They don't look very healthy. There must be a million calories in one of those.
Shop owner: Not a million, but quite a lot. But then, people on healthy diets don't usually come to Bob's Chip Bar.
